

Escape Cell Phone Hell

5 Steps to Running a Thriving Business Without Your Cell Phone Running You

STEP 5: Calm Your Anxiety About Being Away from Your Phone

JoyEvanns.com/freeconsult

Action Step #1:

Test the system you've developed in a dry run while you are present. Sit down with your staff and the decision trees you've created and you give them a scenario and ask them to figure out what they'd do. You can coach them when they get stuck without doing it for them.

You'll see quickly where the holes are. Fill in the gaps. Fix anything that isn't clear or doesn't work as you envisioned.

Action Step #2:

When you feel confident in the system you've created in a dry run, now run a LIVE test. Let them practice handling things in your absence AS IF you were on a day off, but with you still available via phone or email.

That way you can still coach them if they get stuck. Again, review how this goes. Keep taking baby steps. Work your way up to longer and longer time frames. Before you know it, you can be gone a week or more with the full confidence that your staff can handle things.

Action Step #3:

Address any remaining anxiety as your cell phone gets quieter or you will sabotage the perfectly good system you've created. What do you need to see, know, or hear from your staff in order to feel confident that they are doing what you'd like? Make sure you communicate that. Be patient as you all adjust to the new system. Try journaling or sitting and breathing if you notice a surge of anxiety. Or get support from a coach or therapist. You can do this!

Action Step #4:
